the floor. The best game of the day was that between the crack First team of the juniors and the Outlaws, when R. Parsons won the contest for his side by his excellent shooting of goals, the score being 12 to 6.

In the first preliminary game between the Greeks and Spartans, the former combination won out in a walk, each man being credited with at least two field goals, while the opposing five were not able to annex a single goal, the final score of 25 to 6 showing the good team work of the winners.

The second contest between the Romans, the final count being 16 to 4. Luebbert and Parsons were in good form and found several openings around the only posing goal for good.
